To foster excellence in genealogical work in Connecticut by supporting those researching professionally and those Connecticut repositories that serve as their primary resources.

Post Office Box 4273

Hartford, Connecticut 06147-4273

The Connecticut Professional Genealogists Council, through its support of those researching professionally, seeks to foster excellence in genealogical work in Connecticut. Members of the council are dedicated to this task in their private professional work.

The researchers on this list work in Connecticut records. They are familiar with the major repositories and civil records systems of the state. Their research interests cover periods from colonial Connecticut through each wave of immigration to the present time.

Members of CPGC also work to support the primary repositories of genealogical information in Connecticut. Staff members of both the Connecticut State Archives and the Connecticut Historical Society are actively involved in furthering that communication.

All interested professionals are welcome to join by writing to the council. There are minimal annual dues.

Individuals wishing to hire professional researchers may write to our members at their home addresses.
